Source I - A Nurse on the Western Front

Use this reading for questions 1 to 5.

I bandage men whose wounds I cannot name, for shells tear in ways bullets do not. Gas leaves men coughing for air that burns, and I learn to work with a mask slipping and hands shaking. The wounded arrive in waves after an attack, and we sort them by who can be saved, who must wait, and who will not live.

At home, women like me were told war was men business. Here, I see that war is also our business, in wards that never close. When the war ends, I do not think we will return quietly to the lives we left.
