Reading I - A Walk on the Land

Use this reading for questions 2 to 4.

An elder leads a small group along a trail and names plants as they pass. For each plant, the elder explains where it grows, when it can be gathered, and how much should be left behind. The group gathers only a little, and they leave the youngest plants untouched.

Back at the start of the trail, the elder asks the group what they noticed about the land itself. One youth says the trail follows water. Another says the gathering places are near shelter from wind. The elder nods and says that the land teaches if you walk slowly and pay attention.

- An invented account of a land walk in British Columbia
