Reading I - Salmon, Cedar, and Stories

Use this reading for questions 1 to 3.

Every summer, my family joins relatives at the river for the salmon run. Elders tell stories about the river, about respect for the fish, and about taking only what the family needs. The stories are not just entertainment: they teach how to live well with the land and with each other.

My uncle works with cedar, and he says the tree gives wood for canoes, houses, and tools, but you must thank the tree and use it well. When I asked why we do things this way, my grandmother said: this is who we are, and the stories carry who we are forward.
