Source I - A Traveler on a Roman Road

Use this reading for question 10.

The road is straight and paved with fitted stones. Milestones mark the distance to the next town, and soldiers patrol the route. Merchants carry olive oil and grain in wagons, and a message sent from Rome can reach a distant province in days rather than weeks.

10 Based on Source I, how did Roman roads help the empire?

- A They stopped all farming
- B They replaced the Roman army
- C They improved travel, trade, and communication
- D They closed the borders
