Source I - A Farmer in Mesopotamia

Use this reading for question 25.

Our village digs channels from the river before planting season. When the water is low, the channels carry it to fields far from the bank. When the river rises too high, we strengthen the banks so the flood does not wash the crops away. A good harvest depends on work shared by many families.

25 Based on Source I, why did Mesopotamian farmers build channels and banks?

A To create harbors for ocean ships

B To hide grain from traders

C To build walls around temples

D To control river water for farming
